Another Account of the glorious Operations of the ſecond Ruſſian Army againſt the Turks, commanded by Field-Marſhal Lacy in the Crimea, is likewiſe publiſhed at Petersburg, the Subſtance thereof is,

THE 23d of July the Veldt-Marſhal Lacy arriv'd within 29 Werſtes of the City of Baſſar, and was there attack'd by a conſiderable Body of Tartars commanded by their Cham in Perſon: The Attack was very vigorous in the Beginning; but after our Troops had made ſome Diſcharges the Enemy fled towards the Mountains, and were purſu'd about 15 Werſtes by the Coſſacks and Calmucks who made a great Slaughter among them.

The 24th the Army halted on the Banks of the River Karaſs, as well to reſt a little after ſo long and troubleſome a March, as becauſe of the exceſſive Heat that Day: But the Coſſacks and Calmucks nevertheleſs made an Incurſion towards Baſſar, and even in amongſt the Mountains to deſtroy the Tartars Habitations They return'd the ſame Day with about 1000 Priſoners, a conſiderable Booty, and a great Quantity of Cattle.

The 25th Lieutenant-General Count Douglas, a Scotchman, march'd in the Van towards Baſſar, with 6140 Foot and Dragoons, beſides Coſſacks and Calmucks, the Veldt Marſhal following with the reſt of the Army: A great Number of Tartars endeavouring to oppoſe his Paſſage were defeated by him and put to Flight, with the Loſs of a great many of their Men; after which our Army diſcover'd a Body of Turkiſh Troops fortified on a riſing Ground before the City, amounting to about 15,000 Men, according to the Report of the Priſoners we had taken. Upon which the Veldt-Marſhal detach'd two Regiments of Dragoons with all the Coſſacks and Calmucks of the Army to attack them and ſtorm the Town: The Succeſs was anſwerable to the Undertaking; moſt of the Turks were cut to Pieces, the reſt put to the Rout, and Baſſar taken the ſame Day, pillag'd and entirely reduced to Aſhes. The City was conſiderable, it had 38 Moſques, (or Mahometan Temples) two Greek Churches, one Armenian Church, a Synagogue for the Jews, 30 Water-Mills, 27 Magagines or Storehouſes, and above 12,000 Houſes, of which 8100 were Stone, ſeveral other publick Edifices; all which were firſt plunder'd and then burnt down to the Ground The Booty our Troops have made, is inеſtimable, as well in Merchandize as other Effects; the Inhabitants many of whom were put to the Sword, not having had Time to ſave any Thing. As the City of Baſſar was ſituated in the Avenues of the Mountains, where the Paſſes are ſo narrow that three Men can hardly march a-breaſt, and Forrage being ſcarce, the Veldt Marſhal thought proper to return from thence, and after having given Orders to the Coſſacks and Calmucks to deſtroy and burn all the Tartar Habitions they could find in the Mountains, he went and encamp'd at a Place call'd Ramajem.

The 26th the Army came entirely out of the Mountains, and had hardly got into the Plain when 70,000 Men preſented themſelves on the other Side of the Karaſs: Upon which the Marſhal immediately detach'd ſome Regiments of Foot and Dragoons with the Coſſacks and Calmucks to paſs the River, and draw the Tartars that Way: The Cannonading continued ſome Hours on both Sides, during which the Coſſacks and Calmucks came ſeveral Times to Blows with the Enemies, and at laſt forced them to retire with great Loſs: Two of the Enemies Murſes or Chiefs were taken Priſoners upon that Occaſion; we alſo took one of their principal Standards. After that Action the Marſhal call'd in all the Troops he had detach'd againſt the Tartars, and contin'd his March, leaving the heavy Baggage on the Banks of the River, under a Guard of 7000 Men commanded by Brigadier Zolokotzow. The ſame Day 2000 Calmucks that had been ſent into the Mountains, tains, came back to the Camp with a great Booty and above 1000 Prisoners, among whom were several Murses

During the six Days, from the 26th of July to the 1st of August, which the Marshal spent in marching from the River Karass to the Mouth of the River Sangurski, he caus'd all the Towns, Villages and Hamlets, &c: on the Right and Left to be reduced to Ashes, amounting to above 1000 in Number, the Country being extremely well peopled on that Side: His Army at the same time made a Booty, besides of above 60,000 black Cattle, Sheep, &c which were all brought into the Camp. The Enemy, on their Side, left nothing undone to harrass and fatigue us in our March, but were always repuls'd with Loss: But the most astonishing of all is, that notwithstanding the different Encounters our Troops have had with both Turks and Tartars, we have not had 50 Men kill'd and wounded.

The 2d of August Part of our Army pass'd the River Sangurski, and towards Noon the Tartars appear'd with all their Forces to oppose that Passage: They had been reinforc'd by a considerable Body of Turks from Caffa, to the Number of 20,000 Horse and Foot. That Army drew within a Werste and a half of our Troops, but the Marshal detach'd only some Regiments of Foot and Dragoons against them, and cannonaded them about four Hours, when they retir'd with great Loss and Confusion.

The 4th, Veldt-Marshal Lacy pass'd the River with the rest of his Army, with a Design to rest it there a few Days, Forrage being exceeding plenty in that Canton, and afterwards to resume his Operations against the Enemy.

Petersburg, August 18 After Count Munich had left a sufficient Garrison in Oczakow, he began his March from thence the 21st of July, and the next Day at the Distance of 60 Werstes from it was join'd by General Leontieff who during the Attack of Oczakow, remained behind with a Part of the Army, the heavy Baggage and the Provisions. The 23d Count Munich was inform'd by a Party of Cossacks, that the Turks were marched from Bender; that the Gross of their Body was but two Werstes from his Army, and had even attacked his and the Prince of Wolfembuttle's Equipage, but had been bravely repulsed with Loss, by a Troop of Hussars and some other Troops: He was also informed, that the same Day, the Quarter Masters and the Fourriers that had been detached with 350 Men under the Command of Col. Fermer and Lieutenant Colonel Lieven, to mark out a new Camp, had been attacked and surrounded by several Thousand Turks, before they could be join'd by two Regiments that were commanded to support them; that Col. Fermer immediately order'd his little Number to dismount and form a hollow Square, in which Disposition they receiv'd the Enemies Attack with so much Bravery, that they forced them to retire, the Colonel having lost but three Men that were taken Prisoners by the Infidels, and had but nine wounded. Those three Prisoners having since found Means to escape, brought Word to the Count that the Turks that attacked were above 5000 in Number, and were come from Bender with 10,000 Tartars to harrass and intercept the Body that remain'd behind the Grand Army with the Baggage, &c under the Command of General Leontieff

If the Russians continue to go on at this Rate, they will eclipse every Thing that was heretofore thought brave in the World: Even the Colonels among them seem to emulate the Glory of their Generals, and the private Men that of their Colonels.

LONDON, September 8.

They write from Geneva, that two Representatives of Berne, accompanied with several Members of the Council, were arrived there, and the Deputies of Zurich are hourly expected, jointly to employ their good Offices, in order to re-establish the Tranquility of the City. It's thought that there are already gone out of the City near 2000 People, amongst whom are five Members of the Little Council, and most of the Council of 200. Since the Burghers have become Masters of the City, there have been 5 People kill'd with Impunity, and their Obstinacy in persisting in their Pretensions is so great, that even the Women threaten to poison their Husbands, if they abate any thing of the Demands they have made.

Sept 24 His Majesty has been pleased to appoint Major General Tyrrel, to be Governor of New-York, in the room the Right Hon the Lord Delawar.

Ostob. 1. On Thursday the Right Hon. the Earl of Albemarle kiss'd his Majesty's Hand on his being appointed Captain General and Governor of Virginia.
